"I am a second generation Oster customer. My father started this business in 1966, and as far as we are concerned, Oster is it. Everything Oster does is first class, from the quality of their rolls to the way they pack their product to the relationship they've built with us over the years. We tend to use heavier gauge metals in our shop, and Oster has always been able to meet our specifications. Our finished products are very high caliber— for instance, several of our pieces were taken into the permanent collection of the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston - so there simply can't be any imperfections in the surface metals. With Oster, we always know what we are getting and can rely on the fact that we won't have to deal with impurities. I have looked at other suppliers over the years, so I know that the product Oster puts out is top notch."
